Lookin' Around with 'Mac'

If you've been reading the papers regularly in the last few weeks you have occasionally seen reference to the Nevada County High Graders. The organization title is usually followed by "an organization of Nevada City and Grass Valley newspapermen, artists, attorneys and publishers."

This mysterious "organization" was born in the fertile mind of Al Trivelpiece, whom you have met in this column before. It is widely believed that the birth took place in the Lipman home over a bottle of—ginger-ale. Am informed there were numerous newspapermen, artists, attorneys and publishers present at this historic event.

The nativity was produced by considerable beefing and wailing on the part of all hands, the general text being "Something ought to be done about it." Once laid before us, it is doubtful whether anybody present could adequately describe the infant.

My impression is that the High Graders was instituted primarily to publicize Nevada county, to place its good name before the world and to infer thereby that Nevada county is a mighty good place to build a home, wet a line, or spend a buck. It was suggested, I'm sure, that the name High Graders, would be followed by Inc. but the true meaning of the addenda would be Incomplete, thereby suggesting that the organization might someday add ". . . bankers, realtors, plumbers, lumbermen, dentists, etc, ad infinitum."

There are no officers, though I remember that everyone agreed that A. T. was the only man possessing both beauty and brains and was therefore dignified by the title Chief Specimen Boss.

There is just one rule and it reads: "This organization shall have no rules." There are no speeches; everybody talks at one time and nobody pays any attention to anybody else. But even though great ideas fall on deaf ears, the simple act of expounding them gives them authenticity and validity.

As any good gold miner can tell you, a high grader is one who, by means best known to his trade, manages to carry out a little project as anonymously as possible. Brushing aside the minor moral aspects of his activity, one might say his primary purpose is to enrich his community. Lest we get into trouble by carrying this simile too far, let's say that Nevada County's new High Graders resolve without benefit of declarations to pick up a nugget of an idea here and there and smuggle it out to the rest of the world.

It may be safely assumed that a high grader must move fast in order to maintain the quality of his work. He rarely stands still, unless required by the insistent demands of the specimen boss.

This account has been somewhat facetious but behind it lies a serious purpose. A group of promotion minded citizens can accomplish much for the economic improvement of the community. If the method has the light touch with objectivity, it may get results.

Seriously, the Grass Valley junior chamber of commerce heard a proposal Monday night that a convention bureau be established for the purpose of encouraging and inviting small conventions to Nevada City and Grass Valley. It was pointed out that three conventions were held in Grass Valley in the last three weeks.

Other ideas are worth tackling: promotion of this year's centennial Fourth of July event and future annual festivals, construction of a foot trail on Deer creek for the edification of tourists, preserving the historicity and traditions of the area which have appeal for visitors.

TOMORROW IS CLEANUP DAY IN NEVADA COUNTY

Tomorrow an army of men and volunteer workers will invade the highways and byways of Nevada county on a mopping up operation.

The volunteers will do battle with the roadside dumps of unsightly trash, garbage and rubbish.

Directing the campaign will be members of the Nevada County Conservation Council which set the project in operation.

Harry Hyatt, head of Nevada county soil conservation service, and Keith Macdonald, Tahoe national forest, will direct the program of cleaning-up the county roads, and will be assisted by Don Knowlton, state division of forestry; Leon Stanford, president of the Nevada county conservation council; M. A. Benedict, past president of the council; and C. K. Heffren, Grass Valley Lions club and Rod and Gun club.

Organizations taking part will include 4-H clubs, farm bureau organizations, Grass Valley junior chamber of commerce, boy scout troops, chambers of commerce of Nevada City and Grass Valley, Rotary and Lions clubs of both cities and Grange units.

Boy scouts will serve as flagmen for the various crews. Road Commissioner J. F. O'Connor is supplying county road equipment and other equipment will be furnished by the state division of forestry, Nevada irrigation district, state division of highways and individuals.

Material which cannot be destroyed on the spot will be transported to a dumping site located on the McCourtney road. The site was recently acquired by the county for that purpose.

Zero hour is 8 a.m. tomorrow.

Crew chief assignments as announced by Hyatt:

Squirrel creek road: Leon Sanford.

McCourtney road: members of Banner Grange.

PARK OFFICIALS MAKE NO COMMENT ON BANNER DISTRICT

Officials of the San Francisco office of the national park service declined to comment Wednesday following a tour of the site of the proposed Banner mountain gold park, advocated by Mr. and Mrs. Val Baima, residents of the area.

The inspection was made by Homer Crowley, national park service regional engineer; Sanford Hill, acting chief planning and construction engineer; and E. M. Hilton, reservoir development and management engineer.

Vane Pitney, assistant fire control officer of Bloomfield district of Tahoe national forest, and Evan Thomas, state division of forestry, and Mr. and Mrs. Baima accompanied the park service officials on the tour.

Crowley said a report will be filed with the Washington office of the national park service after checking with the California division of parks and beaches.

IN WAR GAMES

Norman Edward Hoskin, fireman apprentice, U. S. navy, of 420 Commercial street, is participating in DEMON III aboard the patrol craft USS 882, the first 1950 major fleet exercises to be held in west coast waters, which end today.

HISTORIC BELL AGAIN VISIBLE ON FRENCH CORRAL SCHOOLHOUSE

The historic bell that for decades has graced the tower of the 91-year-old French Corral school house is once more visible to the passing motorist.

The bell, considered a collector's item among bell fanciers is reported to have been cast in the early days out of bronze and 200 silver dollars donated by the residents of French Corral. The bell was reportedly cast in Troy, N. Y. by a factory that specialized in bells of resonant tones.

The bell was not visible in the tower of the school house at the time of the recent auction of the building by Ralph E. Deeble, county clerk.

GEORGE LOWRY NAMED HEAD OF WELFARE DEPT.

George S. Lowry, 33, public assistance supervisor of San Joaquin county welfare department, was appointed Nevada county director at a special meeting of the board of supervisors Monday.

Lowry will take over June 1. He replaces Keif D. Melberg, who resigned to accept a similar position at Hanford. Melberg's resignation is effective today.

Coid F. Gardner, public assistance worker, will serve in the interim.

Lowry is a native of Covelo and was graduated from Humboldt state college at Arcata. He completed graduate work at the University of Chicago.

He served as a public assistance worker in Humboldt county before entering the war where he served at a heavy bomber pilot attaining the rank of major.

Since the war he has served as social welfare agent in the state department of social welfare, Sacramento, and at Stockton.

Lowry will receive $285 salary a month as director here.

PTA FATHERS' NIGHT DINNER TO FEATURE YOUTH PROTECTION

Plans were made for the annual fathers' night banquet when Nevada City elementary school Parent-Teachers association directors met Wednesday afternoon at the school cafeteria. Mrs. Arnold Jackson presided at the officer session.

W. R. Creighton, chief investigator of the state department of narcotics enforcement, will be the principal speaker at the dinner meeting, which is set for tonight at 6:30 in the school cafeteria.

The speaker will discuss juvenile protection. Mrs. F. E. Rogers, program chairman, has also arranged to show a film entitled "Dangerous Stranger."

Mrs. Jackson will preside at a short business meeting and will report on the recent convention of the California Congress of Parents and Teachers, which she recently attended in Santa Cruz.

The supper committee, headed by Mrs. Lloyd Geist, met Tuesday to plan the meal, which will be supplied by board members and parents.

The high school PTA has been invited to attend the fathers' night dinner tonight because of unusual interest in the problem of juvenile protection.

The board at its Wednesday meeting discussed the current child health program. It was announced that the second series of vaccinations will begin Tuesday.

On June 1 pre-school health examinations will be held at the elementary school. The school administration requests names of all children who will be entering school for the first time next fall.

Jack Lockridge, formerly of the Pines, Auburn, and the Dew Drop Inn, south of Grass Valley, is now operating the Hut cafe on Broad street.

LIBRARIAN AND COACH WANTED BY N. C. SCHOOLS

Wanted: a high school athletic coach and an elementary school librarian. The board of trustees of Nevada City unified school district at its important May meeting last Monday evening discovered that these are the only vacancies on the faculties of local schools as contracts were renewed for the new year beginning in July.

The board accepted without comment the resignation of Douglas Watt, high school football and basketball coach. Watt, who offered no explanation in his letter to Board Secretary Miles D. Coughlin, joined the high school faculty here last September.

Mrs. Luvia Kilroy, who joined the elementary school faculty in 1937 but has been on a year's leave of absence, notified the board that she was willing to return to her position next year. She will replace John D. Conway, who has served the past year as a substitute. His formal letter of resignation was accepted.

Blanket motions by the board to rehire all teachers in the high and elementary schools was followed by acceptance of the resignations.

Tenure status was granted to Miss Evelyn Corr, English and Spanish teacher at the high school; Miss Helen C. Chapman, history, geography and phyiscal education instructor at the high school; and Mrs. Isabel Hefelfinger, school nurse.

Trustees J. Paul Bergemann and Elton Kendrick were named to a committee to work with the city council to investigate the possibility of the district and the city combining their efforts in a program of improving facilities at Pioneer park

Appointment of the committee followed a suggestion by Mayor Thomas H. Taylor, who with Councilman Marvin E. Haddy appeared at Monday's meeting, that the school board and the city council work out a mutual program for park improvement.

The board instructed Coughlin to write District Attorney Vernon Stoll for an opinion regarding legality of such a move.

Bergemann was named to talk and present diplomas at the high school graduation exercises Friday, June 9, and Mrs. Freda Becraft was named to represent the school board at the elementary school graduation on Wednesday, June 7.

Principal topic of discussion at the meeting was the 1950-51 budgets for the two schools which will be drawn up at the June meeting. Preliminary discussion indicated that a majority of the teachers at both schools will receive an average $132 yearly increase in salary.

OPEN HOUSE TODAY COUNTY HOSPITAL

Nevada county hospital will be open for public inspection today between the hours of 1 and 3 p.m. and during that time visitors will be conducted through the plant.

Open house is being observed in conjunction with State Hospital day.

Charles W. Veale, superintendent of the hospital, urges persons interested in the hospital to take advantage of the open house and inspect the facilities. Veale added that the staff is proud of its hospital.

CHMA ELECTION SUNDAY AT GRASS VALLEY MEET

Annual election of officers will be held Sunday afternoon at a regular meeting of the California Hydraulic Mining association at the Bret Harte Inn, Grass Valley. Ballots were mailed to all members and will be counted at the Sunday meeting.

While the votes are being canvassed a representative of the California division of mines will project a motion picture for the main body of members and visitors.

NO WONDER IT'S TOUGH TO GET UP MORNINGS ON DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME

People often make the charge that officials and clerks in the county courthouse are behind the time or don't know what time it is. A glance at the courthouse clock will make it reasonably understandable. In fact the clock on the tower of the courthouse has been one hour behind for 13 days—to be exact since April 30 when daylight saving time went into effect.

So the next time your liver acts up don't vent your spleen on the courthouse officials and clerks—after all it is kinda confusing to figure out what time it is when one watch says one thing and an official clock says another.

No wonder we've had a tough time getting used to this newfangled time these past two weeks.

VETS BUILDINGS ARE PROBED BY GRAND JURY

Chairman Warren Odell, Carl Tobiassen, J. C. Coughlan and Frank Rowe, members of Nevada county board of supervisors, appeared before the grand jury for questioning regarding construction of a veterans memorial building in Nevada City. Nature of the questioning was not disclosed.

Cost of constructing the building has been estimated at $26,000 and work must begin before Jan. 1, 1952, to obtain 50 percent apportionment from the state.

Curtis Clark, foreman of the grand jury, did not reveal the nature of the questioning of the supervisors, but said that construction of a building here is up to the supervisors.

Clark said the building may be financed by two methods—one by forming a district following an election by residents of the proposed district — and the other by taxation on a county-wide basis which requires no election.

Clark declined to comment on any discussion involving the Memorial building in Grass Valley.

FLAGS, BUNTING TO DECORATE NC FOURTH OF JULY

Nevada City will be gaily decorated during the Fourth of July Centennial Celebration July 1, 2, 3, and 4, following adoption of a plan for rental of flags and bunting by the Nevada City Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night at city hall.

The decorations, which will be rented for $750, will include 30 strings of banners and bunting on 109 business houses on Broad, Commercial, Main and Pine.

The rental company will put up the decorations and remove them after the celebration and carry insurance on them.

I. C. Bell led a discussion for a dinner meeting of the Feather-Yuba River Watershed association, a six-county highway promotional organization with a tentative date of Wednesday, May 24 set. Officials of the state highway division will be invited.

Secretary H. F. Sofge brought up a discussion regarding recent withdrawal of membership in the chamber by the Grass Valley Union. Reporter Al Lindsey said the withdrawal action was effected because of critical remarks about the Union by officials of the chamber.

President Ray Spickelmier appointed himself and William C. Briggs as a committee to discuss the matter with Union Publishing company officials.

Sofge ended the discussion with the remark, "I guess I can consider myself a bad little boy for criticizing the Union and can now consider myself spanked by them."

MRS. CARRIE THOMPSON ANNOUNCES PLATFORM AS TRUSTEE CANDIDATE

Mrs. John G. (Carrie) Thompson, who is a candidate for election to the board of trustees of Nevada City unified school district, asserts she is well qualified to serve the taxpayers and parents of the district.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson have been residents and taxpayers in the district since 1943. Their three sons entered the Nevada City schools at that time. Their oldest boy, John Jr., graduated from high school, and is now a student in the University of California. The two younger boys are now pupils in high school.

With Elton Kendrick's retirement from the board, there will be no board member with a child in high school unless Mrs. Thompson is elected.

Mrs. Thompson, through interest in the schools, has attended nearly every school board meeting for more than a year. She is familiar with the problems that present themselves to the board, and the manner in which the board transacts its business.

Through attendance at these meetings, and by independent study of California educational code, she is well informed concerning the laws governing the operations of the schools and the duties and responsibilities of the board members.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Thompson have identified themselves with worthwhile community activities.

Harold Berliner, another candidate for the school board, at first declined to present a platform to The Nugget for publication but changed his mind and declared he will have one ready for publication in next Friday's issue of The Nugget—which is also election day.

COOPERATION WILL BUILD OUR PARK

The new turfed ball field at Pioneer park has now been in use for several weeks, immeasurably improving the appearance and usefulness of the principal recreation area in Nevada City. Financed by the city and aided by the volunteer labor of the Nevada City Athletic Club, the park development is a great credit to the community.

That Pioneer Park could be an even greater asset in recreational values is testified by observers who point out that the high school does not have an adequate field and there is no night lighting facility in the city.

The move at this time to study a cooperative plan between the unified school district and the city council for financing of additional park improvements is commendable. Both groups are preparing estimates for fiscal budgets. Neither group has excess funds available nor do they wish to impose a greater tax burden. But cooperative effort is legally possible under recreation provisions of the state education code and economically feasible when there is a will to chop and whittle and manage.

There should be a modern lighting system at Pioneer park to provide night football, baseball and softball. And to make the project complete, adequate spectator stands should be constructed. The developed field might well provide all the requirements for major high school athletics, as well as some of the physical education needs of the elementary school.

In recent years there has been a wide acceptance in California of the theory that organized and supervised recreation builds better citizens. Enabling legislation by the state has stimulated cooperation between school districts and other governing bodies to create recreation districts for this end.

If we accept the theory that recreation is an essential to well-developed community life and if we support the contention that the taxpayer faces what amounts to confiscation of his property, we should applaud any effort to bring these two extremes together. The Nugget applauds the cooperation suggested by Mayor Thomas H. Taylor on behalf of the city and Dr. B. W. Hummelt's willingness to pursue the study on behalf of the school board. If cooperative effort in all levels of community activity should be coordinated in this spirt we would have far less recrimination and far more progress.—jwm.

"A GOOD MAN DOESN'T NEED A BOSS"

In last Friday's issue of the Grass Valley Union appears an amazing advertisement bearing the signature of Wayne Brown, candidate for Sheriff of Nevada County. Unless Mr. Brown has evidence that is presentable to a court of law, he is making inferences and insinuations that smack of libel.

The advertisement, by inference, charges Sheriff Richard W. Hoskins with being dictated to by a "boss." We have heard, off and on, for the past year rumors and charges of wholesale bribery of sundry county officials The Nugget, will as a matter of news policy, publish any documented evidence of bribery of any official. Until such time as any official is, in due course of law, charged and or found guilty of any criminal action, we will abide by the accepted common law of the land that a "person is innocent until proven otherwise."

The advertisement, by inference, alleges the administration of Sheriff Hoskins is partial, fallacious, unbusiness-like, dishonest, inefficient, incompetent and cowardly.

This editorial is not primarily a defense of Sheriff Hoskins—we feel he needs none. Our observation of the office the past year would rate his administration on a par with most of the sheriff's offices of the state. And it is not a condemnation of Wayne Brown. If Brown can show us he will be a better sheriff than the incumbent he will get our support. This editorial is a condemnation of the political advertisement referred to in our first paragraph and its mud slinging imputations.

Mr. Brown or Sheriff Hoskins can get The Nugget's support of his candidacy by a straightforward presentation of a constructive program of administration but not by allegations and insinuations. —kww.

Ticklers — By George

"And believe me, life is no bed of roses!"

A Guy Can Dream, Can't He?

Just Wonderin'

I Wonder how the spirit lies
Asleep at times, but never dies—
How when it wakens from its dream,
The olden campfires seem to gleam,
While in the shade of tree or vine
We meet the soul of Forty-Nine
And in its presence feel and know
The sturdy faith of long ago.

In the days of gold, a road known as the Great Highway wound its way from Marysville to Smartsville, then on through the covered bridge which spanned the Middle Fork of the Yuba, up the steep, narrow and crooked grade from that point to French Corral, Birchville, Sweetland, Sebastapol and San Juan. From San Juan it twisted about the canyon walls, passed through the covered bridge at Oregon creek and proceeded over Henness Pass to Nevada state and the Comstock Lode.

We of the San Juan Ridge are rather proud to know that a portion of this famous old road is still intact; now a quiet county road, running in some instances parallel to the state highway 49, it is maintained and kept in good condition for the service of little towns and communities which still cling to its borders.

In the old days this road was a most important adjunct to the Northern Mines, for over it by means of twenty, sixteen or fourteen-mule teams were brought supplies of food and machinery to the mines and the towns which had been builded by the great roaring man-made canyons from which gold was being extracted in unbelievable quantities.

Historians and romanticists have made this era of gold mining famous the world over and many tales of heroic endeavor are linked with the towns and cities which we still hold dear. The old spirit was one of courage and high adventure; our pioneers were men of sturdy faith in their homes, in the great mines and in themselves. Nothing too much was their motto and herculanean tasks of road building and gold digging were accomplished without benefit of modern machinery, in fact with nothing more efficient than hands armed with picks and shovels, axes and saws. Their labors seem incredible to the modern road builder and mine operator but they won their guerdons and left their marks upon these hills—marks which are still visible and which are cherished by their children's children as a part of the vast heritage with which they endowed us.

We cherish our landmarks and from the covered bridge at Bridgeport there is a chain of these reminders of the past, which we are endeavoring to preserve for the generations to follow.

At French Corral we find the old telephone building, and the 91-year-old school house, which but recently was placed upon the auction block and sold to the highest bidder. When the catastrophe of losing this old landmark threatened, the people of the little community were instantly in arms. Then the miracle for which we are always on the alert happened; long ago students of the old building sent in contributions and a goddess from Reno came to the assistance of the little town and the landmark was reclaimed and is now in possession of those who love and would preserve it.

So it is that the old spirit still lives in these hills of home, and we are asking visitors to this realm of romantic history to pause by these old buildings and read the plaques placed upon them by the Native Daughters of the Golden West. The information gathered in this way, will prove both interesting and instructive, and add no little to the pleasure of a trip through the Mother Lode country.

Timber Access Roads

There have been a good many inquiries from my district in regard to the measure introduced by Senator Morse and me authorizing $20,000,000 a year for five years to be expended in the building of self-liquidating timber access roads. Senator Morse's bill passed the senate and has been pending before the house committee on agriculture. In the earlier months of this session I was promised a hearing on the bill. However, the public works committee of the house in the meantime began holding hearings on a general federal roads bill, embracing authorizations for all federal highway programs, including timber access roads. That committee has now voted out a bill providing an authorization for $17,500,000 a year for these self-liquidating timber access roads.

Under the circumstances it would seem wise for those supporting the bill introduced by Senator Morse and me to join in and support the $17,500,000 authorized in the general legislation. In the first place, there is only $2,500,000 a year difference in the amounts authorized. And, secondly, the general roads bill voted out by the public works committee will have wide support in the congress due to the fact that it deals with the entire federal road program, in which every state in the union is interested. Although the authorization in the bill is slightly less than the one Senator Morse and I introduced, the fact is that previous authorizations for which no actual appropriations have been made accumulate and adding these accumulations the forest service will have authorizations with the new bill in excess of $20,000,000 a year for several years to come. As a consequence, I do not intend to ask for hearings on my bill or to urge hearings on Senator Morse's but will support the provision for the self-liquidating access roads in the omnibus federal road bill.

We've cut our food budget amazingly with our new electric refrigerator

Now we can buy ahead, save trips to the store, and have better meals . . . thanks to our new electric refrigerator with its generous frozen-food section and storage space for fruits and vegetables. There's more room for tall bottles, too . . . and lots more ice cubes. Yet, with all this increased space inside, the new electric refrigerator requires no extra room in the kitchen. It's thrifty to operate, too . . . only a few pennies a day with P. G. and E's low electric power rates . . . and it protects foods at a perfect temperature 24 hours a day.

Plan to see your electrical appliance dealer soon. Have the family look at the new models with you. The daily economies you'll enjoy will help pay the cost of owning a sparkling, new electric refrigerator.

If you keep a list of out-of-town numbers, you'll find calls are put through much faster—often in 30 seconds.

TIPS FOR TOP LONG DISTANCE SERVICE

Ways to save money and minutes on out-of-town calls

1. Reduced rates begin at six in the evening . . . and between six and seven is a good time to call. Long Distance rates are low. And nights and Sundays are a particularly fine bargain. For $2.00 or less (plus tax) you can make a station call anywhere in the country. After the first three minutes, time is charged by the minute . . . not as another three-minute period.

2. For best service, place your call with the operator like this: First, tell her the name of the town you're calling . . . then the telephone number (or the name and address). Next, if it's a person call, give her the name of the one you want to reach. And if you've made notes ahead of time, you'll find you can say as much in three minutes as in an average letter.

3. When you call across the country or across town, you're using a service that's a finer value than ever before. With your telephone, you can reach twice as many people as 10 years ago. You can call more of the people you want to call . . . more can call you. And at rates that make your telephone a real bargain.

S. highway 40 near Big Bend ranger station, on the Tahoe national forest, as the U. Mrs. McClish Entertains Ridge Road Garden Club Tuesday Afternoon

The Ridge Road Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. James McClish, Town Talk, Tuesday.

A small basket, filled with flowers was hanging near the door knocker and the May day theme followed as one entered the lovely home of the McClishes. The buffet table, set beautifully for the dessert luncheon, which was offered the members and guests, had a centerpiece, a May pole decorated with lilies of the valley and a small doll dancing.

Each card table which was used for the luncheon had a pastel colored basket filled with various spring flowers in the center and a huge bouquet of gorgeous gladioli was placed before the fireplace. It was a beautiful setting for a May day garden club meeting.

Due to the illness of little David Rogers, President Ann Rogers did not attend and Vice President Myrtle Weiss presided.

Mrs. William Crase, sister of Mrs. Ethel McClish, who also resides in Nevada City, was a guest and also enjoyed the program which followed the business session.

Mrs. Stuart Chalmers, who is an authority on the growing of iris, brought many of her beautiful varieties, telling the names of each, how tall they grew and what type of sail they required.

The bearded type seems to be the most popular. The first iris of the spring is the Dutch and Spanish varieties. They come in captivating colors, white, yellow, blue and purple. They are superb for cutting and stand much handling, lasting about a week in flower arrangements. The bulbs multiply very fast, giving more blooms each year. They repay generously with their beauty and ask little in return but a well drained sunny spot.

The Siberian iris is a free bloomer and is excellent for cut display. The foliage resembles tall grass. This iris grows any place in any kind of soil. They are white, all shades of blue and purple and range in height from 28 to 58 inches. They are inexpensive, costing about 35 cents to $3.50 per dozen.

The beardless iris is also very hardy. The foliage is like grass but wider than the Siberian and come in an extensive range of colors.

The Japanese iris does not do well in this locality.

The winter iris grows easily in a sunny location. They are very effective around a pool and bloom during December and January.

If a person wishes to add iris to the garden, choose a good variety of colors. Every colors is now available from June through October. Plant them at least 14 inches apart with the rhizones on top of the round, spread the roots out and cover with earth. The entire blooming period lasts only aobut six weeks.

The word iris is derived from the goddess, Iris, who was an attendant of the goddess, Juno.

This instructive lesson iris will be continued at the club's June meeting which will be held at the home of Mrs. George Raddue Sr. Tuesday, June 13. Mrs. John Shannonhouse and Mrs. Beatrice Butcher will be co-hostesses for this dessert-luncheon and regular meeting. Each member is requested to make a hat of flowers or vegetables and wear it to the club meeting. Pictures of the members will be taken to place in the history club book which was recently completed.

The Auburn Garden club extended an invitation to the Ridge Road Garden club to come to the home of Mrs. Frank Stanley, of Auburn, to a salad dessert luncheon Tuesday, 1 p.m.

The last part of the afternoon was spent making corsages with Mrs. Florence Harter kindly instructing the members in this art. The tulips, when the petals were turned back, looked like some exotic flower and made a beautiful corsage. The iris could also be molded to greatly resemble an orchid. Flowers, to be used in corsages, should be cut in the late afternoon or early morning and placed in water for several hours before being used.

"Mortals and Immortals" is the subject of the lesson-sermon to be read in all Christian Science churches this Sunday. The golden text is taken from Romans' "They that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh; but they that are after the Spirit the things of the Spirit" (8:5).

Among the citations comprising the sermon are the following:

The Bible: "Nicodemus saith unto him, How can a man be born when he is old? Can he enter the second time into his mother's womb, and be born? Jesus answered, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God" (John 3:4, 5).

"Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The fading forms of matter, the mortal body and material earth, are the fleeting concepts of the human mind. They have their day before the permanent facts and their perfection in Spirit appear" (p. 263).

TAILINGS

GARBAGE. County-wide. At last something is to be done. The wanton dumping of garbage at the sides of our county roads has been this column's pet peeve for the past three years. Congratulations to the county supervisors for purchasing a dumping site, and for erecting clean-up signs along the county highways. Let every resident get behind the clean-up movement and from tomorrow to the end of time keep Nevada county a clean county.

SPITE. It is akin to hatred. It's that something which is spawned from jealousy. The old man who lives across the road says that "It's bad for the liver and in time will deteriorate the brain." We were commenting on a woman who said to her carless neighbor, "Well, you can't be bothering your neighbors to take you places!" Both gals belonged to the same club. The carless femme was getting places but the other gal got no attention at all. She quit the club. This left the girl friend in a spot for transportation. But carless manages to get around. Mrs. Spite sits home alone. Spite is something we do not find among the little forest people.

SNOBBERY. It exists in the forest. We saw it in full play the other afternoon. Two infant squirrels were sunning themselves on the lower limbs of a dead pine. Ugly, sleepy little guys. Along came the sleek and haughty Mrs. Bluefinch. She wanted the commoners to get out of her way. The homely little brats! She fussed, fumed and beat her lovely lavender-blue wings. Dopey and Sleepy were too awed by the elegant attack to make a move. Then the ladybird snob began to peck the helpless little fellows on their funny heads. She was giving them a rough time when Mama Squirrel appeared and in no uncertain words told the lady where she could fly.

* * *

MURDER. It exists in the forest. A few days before this last storm we watched a forest gangster on the loose. It was at dusk. The forest inhabitants were bedding down for the night. Soft, warning, good-night calls were heard. The rustling of leaves caused by scampering of little feet. Then the surprise! One of the largest owls that we have ever seen came taxiing through the treets. His ease and grace at missing branches and shrubbery was remarkable. The presence of a human did not seem to bother him. He was wicked beauty personified in weather and cruel strength.

REVIVAL. A religious one has been going on in the county. Many persons have found their way into the fold of Christianity. It is a sign of the times. Why is it that when trouble is upon us, it is then that we think of God and call out for help and mercy? During untroubled days we fail to give thanks for our many blessings. Why not be like the birds out here under the sugar pines? Sing the Lord's praise every morning. He created and protects them as he created and protects us.

EXHIBITION OF CORNISH WRESTLING AT FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATION RECALLS ONE OF THE CITY'S GREAT SLOGGING MATCHES WITH JAMES RODDA

One of the leading events of the coming Fourth of July Centennial celebration in Nevada City this summer will be an exhibition of Cornish wrestling—a genteel name for mayhem that features the use of a special canvas jacket and holds that are not used in conventional types of brawling.

Elton Tobiassen, chairman of the sports committee of the celebration, said yesterday that boxing and wrestling will have a part in the festival on the basis of the two types of athletics constituting the principal sports of the early days of Nevada City—that is, next to drinking, gambling, chasing women and drinking.

The earliest years of the county saw the Cornish method of wrestling dominate an era of ring contests that were more of the nature of rough and tumble brawls, with eye gouging, bone breaking and similar other methods the human animal has of letting off steam.

Cornish wrestling was a refined method of rough and tumble. The ascent of boxing eliminated the rough and tumble and started the Cornish wrestling on the decline. One of the earliest boxing matches in Nevada City was a celebrated match between James Rodda of this city and Frank Moore of Grass Valley on Saturday, Aug. 16, 1884, and naturally the local man won.

Nearly six hundred men crowded into the local theatre to witness what was called a slogging match with three-ounce "pillows," the rules of a gentleman named the Marquis of Queensbury, to be followed.

Although the fight was in violation of law, and enforcement officials were on hand at the scrap they would not stop the fight without a complaint by a citizen and no one complained. The law at that time called it a penitentiary offense for participants, seconds, officials and spectators to be involved in a box match. The Nevada Daily Transcript, with tongue in cheek, remarked that obviously as long as the county officials were elected by voters they would not risk hostility by acting against the desires of so many witnesses of the match.

A special train was dispatched by the Nevada County Narrow Gauge railroad from Grass Valley to permit spectators from the quartz town a chance to encourage their champion.

A 24-foot ring was staked on the stage of the theatre and a double line of ropes were strung around it. The floor was liberally sprinkled with chalk to prevent the men from slipping.

Joe Snell was named master of ceremonies for the evening. Thomas L. Hughes refereed the match. The rules called for three-minute rounds with a minute of rest between. In case of a knockdown, ten seconds were allowed in which to rise unassisted. Wrestling was prohibited. By private agreement between Rodda and Moore accidental fouling was to be ruled out.

No-decision preliminaries were held between Jim McGibbons and Jim Richards, and Peter Eddy and Richard Trevaskis.

Moore weighed in at 138 pounds, two pounds lighter than his opponent and giving away an inch and a half in height. Richard Shugg and Mr. Skewes were Moore's seconds. Andy Steele and Thomas McKay performed similar duties for Rodda.

Rodda when stripped, showed remarkable muscular development.

Blow by blow description of the bout as reported in the Transcript:

First round: Moore got in three quick but not very effective taps, when Rodda woke up and by a swinging blow with the left hand sent Moore off his pins. First knockdown for Rodda. Moore sprang up briskly and some lively sparring was done. Rodda felt out for the second time with his left and Moore took another tumble. Moore after getting back on his feet made it warm for his opponent during the next few seconds, whereupon Rodda sent him to prayer. Moore scrambled off his knees but had no sooner done so than down he went again for the fourth time in this round.

Second round: Both lads came up smiling and in good condition. Moore had hardly got to work when Rodda sent him to the floor. They came to close quarters after a little sparring, when Moore apparently smote his enemy on the hip. There were loud cries of foul from the audience, Andy Steele running across the ring to the referee and arguing the point with him but failing to obtain the decision he asked for. When they got together after quiet was restored, Rodda reached out with his left mauly and the Grass Valley man rolled in the chalk. Moore began to get excited, and rushing at Rodda furiously with both hands missed him and fell without a blow. As soon as he had regained his understanding, Rodda began to force things a little and driving him into one of the corners beat a lively tattoo on his phiz and ribs showing the color of Moore's blood. First blood for Rodda. Then they clinched and the round ended, the three minutes having gone by apparently to the great satisfaction of Moore. There were more cries of foul by Rodda's friends the latter part of the round, it being claimed that Moore hit Rodda while they were clinched. The referee did not see it in that light.

Third round: Moore came up cautiously, Rodda tripping forward smiling confidently. Moore clinched Rodda. There were loud cries of "let go." The men separated and went to fighting for a change. After some good sparring Moore tried to get in a solid whack on Rodda's neck, but the neck was out of the way when his flipper reached the point where the doughty little Grass Valleyan had seen it when he started his strike. The momentum of the blow carried Moore, and not his opponent, to the ground. Rodda made an uppercut at him as he staggered to his feet but missed the mark and the round ended. Moore was by this time getting weak and Rodda appeared fresh as ever.

Fourth round: Moore came up in apparently better condition than he did for the third, and many thought he was getting his second wind. It was apparent to close observers that Rodda had him as good as whipped. He was not exactly groggy but he looked very tired and put up his dukes in an uncertain sort of a way. Rodda had things pretty much as he wanted them. Moore sparred for time, and tried to keep out of Rodda's way; but the latter kept close by and finally reaching out knocked Moore down on the latter's chair. Moore got up again only to be knocked down again with one of Rodda's "Nevada City feelers."

Fifth round: Both men sparred awhile each waiting for the other to force the battle. Rodda seeing that Moore was not on that day, tapped him between the eyes, and Moore keeled over. He had not much more than regained his feet when Rodda sent him back from where he had risen. Cries of foul broke the "stillness" of the august assemblage, it being alleged, but incorrectly in the referee's opinion, that Rodda hit Moore as the latter was down. In this round the plucky Grass Valleyan did some good work, but could not hold out long enough to worry his opponent. When time was called, he staggered to his corner badly used up about the face, neck and ribs.

Sixth round: Both men came up and sparred cautiously for about a minute. Rodda with that tantalizing grin on his face, saying, "Hello, partner, how are you getting along?" When they got fairly at work Rodda knocked Moore down twice in quick succession, then drove him into his own corner and punished him badly for some time. Moore being unable to protect himself fell down to escape further punishment.

Seventh round: Rodda started the round with a terrific undercut that knocked the Grass Valleyan dizzy. Moore wandered aimlessly into one of the corners, Rodda helping him along by raining the blows thick and fast on his head and face, blinding him, blacking his left cheek from chin to eye, and leaving several gashes on his body. Moore tried to cover his face and head with his arms, and said something to Rodda in a low tone as Rodda was about to administer more of the terrible punishment. Moore evidently begged for mercy as Rodda quit beating him and Moore staggered to his corner like a drunken man. Rodda followed him and Moore's seconds making no sign of throwing up the sponge, started in to beat him again but more gently than before. Moore did not attempt to retaliate, but placed both his arms on the rope and dropped his head on them. He was completely demoralized and up went the Grass Valley champion's sponge.

Famed Historical Exhibits to Be Seen at Hennessy School

Residents of Nevada City may have the opportunity of viewing a collection of relics and historical objects covering the 100 years of California's history as a state by going to the Hennessy school property where the California Centennials Caravan is making a three-day stand, winding up the display tomorrow. Earl Covey, Grass Valley member of the State Centennials Advisory Committee, and Mayors Thomas H. Taylor of Nevada City and Gilbert Cramer of Grass Valley welcomed the caravan when it arrived yesterday. The exhibits will not be shown in Nevada City.

Features Include Early Mining Items

The story of California—a chronicle that goes back four centuries to the "age of exploration" and spotlights succeeding epochal events that shaped the destiny of the "Gold State"—is the California Historical Caravan, showing today and tomorrow at the Hennessy school in Grass Valley. Students of Nevada City schools from the fourth grade through high school will be conducted through the caravan today.

Assembled by the California Centennials Commission as a key feature of its three-year commemorative program, the caravan consists of a priceless collection of original documents and objects that highlight a series of fourteen exhibit sections, each dealing with a specific period in the state's colorful history.

The rare historical items, ranging from a brass plate Francis Drake affixed on California's shores in 1579 to the gold spike that linked the first transcontinental railroad, are being taken around the state in two specially constructed steel buses.

These buses are so designed as to form a single display unit when being viewed by the public. Visitors enter the caravan through an awning covered ramp, pass through one bus into another without alighting, and finally exit down a second ramp.

An around-the-clock detail of state police is assigned the responsibility of safeguarding the exhibit pieces. When on location, this guard is supplemented by cooperating local police authorities and fire departments. While travelling from one city to another, the impressive white, blue and gold buses will be escorted by a detail of the state highway patrol.

Latest scientific devices assuring maximum theft and fire protection are installed within the buses. These include automatically actuated as well as manually operated fire extinguishing equipment.

Selection and arrangement of the exhibits in the 14 panels were supervised by two well-known historians, Dr. Aubrey Neasham, regional historian of the national park service, and Carroll D. Hall, curator of Sutter's Fort Historical Museum, Sacramento.

The historical objects and documents were loaned to the commission by more than twenty universities, museums, libraries, official archives and private individuals in various parts of the country.

Among the rare items visitors to the caravan will see are: the diary of Don Gaspar de Portola, Father Junipero Serra's personal Bible, the bill of sale that transferred ownership of Fort Ross from Russian commercial interests to Capt. John A. Sutter, the first book and the first newspaper to be printed in California, a proclamation that called for the establishment of a California Republic and another that Commodore Sloat issued when raising the Stars and Stripes over the custom house at Monterey in 1846, the only existing survivor of the Donner party tragedy—a doll.

Also, a drawing made by James W. Marshall after he discovered gold a century ago in which he personally recorded that memorable event, the diary of a 49er, Mark Twain's first book, the manuscript of a poem by Bret Harte, the roster signed by delegates to the first constitutional convention, and the silver hammer used with the famous gold spike at Promontory on May 10, 1869.

There are also many early dauerreotypes and lithographs, mining implements, trade items, pony express mail, receipts for gold dust, coins, famous letters and other documents.

The historical periods covered by the caravan are: the era of exploration, Spanish colonization, Russian settlements, Mexican period, the Bear flag revolt, acquisition of California by the U. S., westward immigration, Marshall's discovery of gold, the gold rush, early mining methods, life in the mines, California's admission as the 31st state, development of transportation and communication and the preserving of California's history.

Mud Lake Gets "Cleared Up"

County officers got a notice from the government not long ago, asking them to change the name of Mud Lake. Seems it's a pond, not a lake, by government standards.

Because it lies entirely inside our town limits, we asked to do the name-changing ourselves. Figured we'd think up a brand-new name. Mud Lake's really not very muddy—sort of pretty, in fact.

County people said go ahead, so we held a Town Meeting. Everyone suggested something. Windy Taylor thought "Taylor Pond" would be nice, because his place borders it—for about 30 feet! But we finally decided to call it "Turtle Pond" in honor of the real owners.

From where I sit, naming that pond wasn't the most important thing in the world—but the way we did it was. Everyone offered his opinion and then the majority vote decided it. That's the way it should be—whether it concerns naming a pond, or having the right to enjoy a friendly glass of beer or ale—if and when we choose.

21-RUN INNING HANGS DEFEAT ON ATHLETICS

Nevada City Athletics had extreme difficulty getting one man out last Sunday afternoon in Folsom—the second out of the sixth inning—and Folsom scored 21 runs in the inning to win the game 37-17.

Goldsberry on the mound for the Athletics had allowed but one hit to that point although the Folsom team had scored eight off him via walks and errors. The big fellow, whose regular position is shortstop, walked the first two men to face him in the disastrous sixth. The third man ground out weakly to him on the mound. Then Goldsberry ran into difficulty finding the plate and three more walks and three singles brought Folsom up into a 17-17 tie.

Manager Steve Pelayo sent him back to shortstop and called on Ed Wojack to hurl. Wojack pitched to three men and walked all three of them. Pelayo sent him to third base and called on Art Gagliardi to throw.

The capable Gagliardi, though no pitcher, finished the game, although combed for four home runs and seven singles.

The way both teams were scoring at ease the game seemed far from lost for the Athletics when Gagliardi went in to pitch with the score 20-17. Gagliardi walked the first two men and then Swanston lifted a towering fly to Haddy in right field that caught the high wind and sailed beyond the councilman's reach for a home run. It was the blow that broke the hopes of the Nevada City team. Completely demoralized, the Folsom team tallied 12 more times while the Nevada City team were goose-egged the last three innings.

Folsom scored 18 runs between the first and second outs of the sixth inning.

Folsom batters hit three home runs in the sixth two of them with loaded bases.

Nevada City started out strong completely outclassing the Folsom team for 5½ innings and causing observers to wonder how the club had ever beaten the two powerhouses of the league — Roseville and Placerville.

Goldsberry and Jones with triples and Haddy with a long double blasted out the big blows for the Athletics.

Carl Fisher, Nevada City's only moundsman at the game, developed a sore arm the first inning and retired after giving up four runs on two hits and three errors.

The Athletics travel to Grass Valley for a game with their rivals that can develop into a whale of a game—if Pelayo has any pitching. Late yesterday he announced he expects to have Carl Fisher, Lynn Roath and Tommy Green on hand for hurling duties and that Fisher will probably be the starter. The receiving chores will be handled by Ains Fouyer. Marv Haddy is scheduled to play third base in the absence of Gagliardi who is spending the weekend in the bay area. The balance of the infield will see Goldsberry at shortstop, Wojack at second and "Brand New Poppa" Babe Childers at first.

Paul Stack in center, Jones in left and Bryan in right will be the outfielders.

Game time is set for 2:30 p.m. at the fairgrounds diamond although there had been negotiations to have the game transferred to Pioneer park.

REVISION OF STREET DEPARTMENT MAY BE ADOPTED BY CITY

Probable revision in program of street construction and maintenance was discussed at the city council meeting last week when Mayor Thomas H. Taylor called the current system impractical with patchwork going to those who howled the loudest.

Taylor suggested setting up a budgeted program of a proper paving of certain streets in a manner that would enable them to be used with minimum maintenance for many years.

CONFESSED MURDERER ONCE RESIDED HERE

Edward L. Williams, 26, Grass Valley, confessed slayer of Theodore Orvie Case, 45, near Timbuctoo April 25, once lived in Nevada City, and was employed for a short while as janitor at the National hotel.

Williams and his wife, Opal, 20, are in Yuba county jail at Marysville awaiting indictment on a murder charge, after confessing the slaying.

Williams and his wife and two children were taken in custody at Bryte last Friday morning following investigation of some pawned articles stolen from the murdered man by Williams. The Yuba sheriff's office, assisted by officers of Nevada county sheriff's office, traced the stolen articles to Williams.

Williams told authorities he shot Case with a .22 rifle because he feared Case had discovered he had been looted by Williams.
